Client Overview

Client Name: Ashley Martinez

Location: San Diego, California

Vehicle: 2011 Hyundai Elantra GLS

Occupation: First-year college student, part-time barista

Mileage on Vehicle: 126,000 miles

Ashley Martinez is a college student; she is managing to balance her school, part-time job and study. She brought her first car from a neighbor at decent price '2011 Hyundai Elantra'. It ran fine for the first few months but then one issue after another began piling up, the most serious being a sudden transmission failure just as she started her second semester.

The Problem Faced by Ashley

One day while driving home from her evening shift, Ashley noticed:

- ◆ Rough gear shifts
- ◆ RPMs revving unusually high
- ◆ A burning smell
- ◆ The check engine light flashing

A local shop confirmed the worst: Your automatic transmission is shot. You're looking at $3,500 for a full replacement.

For Ashley that wasn't just expensive, it was completely out of reach. With tuition bills, rent, and groceries to handle, the idea of dropping thousands on a transmission simply wasn't feasible.

Challenges Faced by the Ashley

- ◆ Limited student budget
- ◆ No backup transportation, missing class and work
- ◆ New transmissions unaffordable
- ◆ Risky Craigslist options with no warranty or quality check
- ◆ Minimal mechanical knowledge, needed a reliable, straightforward solution
